COLOMBO — Sinhalese extremists Tuesday killed two police officers and a journalist and injured at least seven other people, police said. In one incident, radicals of the Janatha Vimukti Peramuna — or People's Liberation Front — detonated explosives north of Colombo just in front of a train loaded with early morning commuters, police said. In another attack, JVP radicals set off a land mine near the southern coastal town of Galle as a police patrol passed by, killing two officers.
